

Jane Cooper

is farmer on Orkney and author of the book 'The Lost Flock'. She is part of a collective called the Orkney Boreray Community that has saved the last few sheep from a recognised line separate to all other Boreray sheep. They farm them together in Orkney for mutton, fleece, tanned skins, leather and horn products.

In her presentation she will tell about the book, these special sheep and their wool, and how it is used. She will talk about the mutton, how it is produced and sold as a Slow Food International Presidium product.
